WE ALSO MANUFACTURE A

Physicians and Surgeons'

OPERATING AND EXAMINING CHAIR.

Which is pronounced by all who have examined or used it to be the best and most practical Chair ever invented for the purpose, and supplies a want long felt by every Physician and Surgeon. It is constructed the same as our other Chair, except that it is made about six inches higher, and is furnished with some movable attachments for examining purposes, which were suggested and constructed under the directions of an eminent Physician and Surgeon of extensive practice and experience, and which makes the Chair just what is needed in the Office of every practicing Physician and Surgeon for those purposes; while, at the same time, it can be used for any of the various purposes of our other Chair when not in use professionally.

Although the cost of manufacturing this Chair is considerable more than our other Chair, yet believing, as we do, that every Physician, when he sees how well our Chair is adapted to the wants of the sick and afflicted, will recommend it to his patients who need its conveniences and comforts. We will, for this reason, sell these Chairs, without the Cushions or attachments, for the same price as the other Chair; and will furnish them with Cushions of the same quality and for the same price mentioned on the price list of the other Chairs. For the attachments we make an extra charge of $1.50.

The Adjustable Folding Chair

IS NEAT, LIGHT, DURABLE AND SIMPLE,

There being no delicate or complicated parts about it to get out of order, or make it difficult to understand. It is constructed with a light frame made of the best smooth wrought iron, and neatly and securely riveted at every joint—the rivets forming the hinges on which the working parts move in making the various changes. Within this iron frame are fitted neat walnut frames, filled with cane, the one thoroughly bracing the other, forming a strong, light, and elastic frame, combining all the various articles of furniture described, and capable of being adjusted into every position required for ease, comfort, and convenience. It is alike useful in the parlor, sitting-room, library, office, or sick-room, and is adapted to all classes and conditions of life. The wealthy can not afford to do without its luxury, or the poor its economy of space and as a substitute for other furniture.

To the farmer, the mechanic, or the business man, who comes in completely fatigued with the labors of the day, this chair furnishes him with a perfect resting-place in any posture he may choose, while reading or enjoying the society of his family.

For the sick or invalid, the chair furnishes an easy resting-place instead of the bed, and can be adjusted to any position which may be required for their ease and comfort; and the helpless can be drawn about upon it with almost as much ease as a child in its carriage.

A Writing Desk can be fitted to the chair by fastening a neat walnut board in the place of the cushioned arm, adapting it more fully to the wants of the minister in his study, the editor in his sanctum, the lawyer in his office, or the student with his books.

In infirmaries and hospitals the chair is almost indispensable, and is being adopted wherever it is known.

As an article of furniture, nothing has ever been invented capable of so many changes, and combining so much utility, strength, durability, elegance, and comfort.

FOR SHIPPING, the chair is folded completely up, the cushions are done up in strong paper packages and bound firmly on each side of the chair, so as to entirely prevent it from becoming rubbed or injured in shipping. The cushioned arms and top ornament are taken off of the chair and done up with the cushions, and only require to be fastened on again with the screws which will be found in their places. In shipping long distances, we enclose the entire package of chair and cushions in a sack of burlap cloth, for which we charge 30 cents extra. The weight of the chair and cushions, when thus packed, is about 60 pounds, and occupies a space of about two feet square.

In ordering, select the kind of chair and cushions you want from the price list, and state plainly how and where you will have it shipped.

The cost of shipping the chairs to any place, either by freight or express, will be at the same rates as other goods of the same weight, and these charges must be paid by the purchaser of the chair, whether ordered directly from the General Office or from our agents.

Money can be sent to us by Post Office Order, by Bank Draft or by Express, or we will ship to responsible parties by Express, C. O. D., with the charges for returning the money added. Address,

FULL LENGTH BED.

A fourth change converts it into a FULL LENGTH BED, six feet long, and two feet wide. This is done by releasing the ratchets which support the back, and turning them back entirely out of the way, and by bringing the legs or supports down into position, as shown in the cut; the foot rest is turned up, to keep the pillow in place, as shown, and the cushions form a mattress for a complete bed. Every housekeeper knows how convenient it is to have an extra bed of this kind in the house when she has more company than she has room for, and especially a bed which can be moved so easily from one room to another, and converted into so many other useful articles. For clerks who sleep in offices, it can be used for a bed at night and a chair by day, or folded entirely up and put out of sight.

THIS POSITION SHOWS THE

RECLINING SEAT, INVALID

—OR—

SICK CHAIR.

Of all the positions of the chair, this is the most comfortable. No lounge or easy chair can compare with it for comfort and luxury. The head, back, limbs and feet are all supported, and the entire body reclines in perfect rest. The want of a chair that is adapted to the requirements of the sick chamber, and that can be adjusted to the necessities of all classes of sick and invalid persons, has long been desired by both physicians and nurses, and almost every family has felt the necessity of such a chair many times. While the Adjustable Folding Chair is not intended for a sick or invalid chair alone, yet we claim, and it is admitted to be better adapted for that purpose than any other chair ever invented. Nothing of the kind has before been invented which is susceptible of so many changes, and capable of being put into so many different positions, and combining so much utility, strength, durability, elegance, and comfort.

THIS CUT SHOWS THE CHILD'S CRIB, BED OR CARRIAGE.

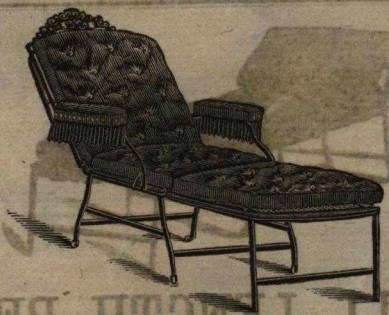
The foot and leg support is unfolded, as shown in the cut; boards can be placed on either side, making a complete bed or crib, suitable for a child up to the age of from six to eight years. The chair running on castors, enables it to be drawn about upon them with as much ease as a child's carriage. This can also be done while an invalid or sick person is resting upon it, where it is desirable to move them from one part of the room to another.

It is hardly necessary to speak of the advantages of this part of the chair, for a child's crib or bed is considered almost a necessity in every family where there are children; and even in families where there are none the necessity for such an article is often felt, where friends and relatives visit with their children. As one of the combinations of the Adjustable Folding Chair, this is considered one of its most valuable conveniences.



This Position shows it with the Foot Rest turned down, forming a COMPLETE LOUNGE.

And possessing so many advantages over other lounges that it will be seen at once, by those contemplating purchasing, that they need look no further for an article that will meet every want.

1st. The back and head rest being movable, enables the person reclining upon it to adjust himself at any incline desired, from the upright position of a chair to a slight incline above the straight bed, giving every position required for comfort while reading, smoking, resting, or sleeping.

2d. Unlike other lounges, it is not required at all times to occupy one position and take up just so much space, but is made into a lounge when needed for that purpose, and changed in a moment to any other article which it makes, when desired.

3d. There is no place for bugs to collect, as in other lounges, from which it is almost impossible to free them when once infested. We find this a matter of no small consideration, for we have daily complaints coming from those who say they have had to throw away almost new lounges on this account. There are thousands of lounges of various kinds sold every year which must occupy just so much space, whether needed or not, and which cost as much, or more, than the Adjustable Folding Chair. Then would it not be better to purchase, at the same price, an article which has so many advantages, and combines so many other useful articles? We leave this to those who contemplate purchasing.

The above Cut shows the Chair without Upholstery, with the Foot and Leg Support folded in, forming a DOUBLE-BOTTOMED

CANE-SEATED EASY CHAIR

Which occupies no more space than any other style of easy chair, and having some advantages which make it the best and most comfortable easy chair ever invented:

1st. The back being adjustable, enables the person while sitting in it to regulate it to any incline desired, obviating the necessity of tipping the entire chair back to get an easy position, which is so common a practice, and by which so many chairs are broken.

2d. The cushions being movable, the chair can be used either with or without them, making the cool cane-seated chair for summer, or soft-cushioned chair when desired.

N. B. The chair can also be used with or without cushions in any of the other positions described in this circular.
